DISCUSSION GUIDE

I KNOW YOU DIDN'T JUST SAY THAT

1.	"When children speak offensively, parents often respond in one of two ways: either we ignore the child, hoping he will outgrow it, or we administer some sort of consequence, hoping to put the fear of God in him. Both methods are ineffective, because they fail to train and instruct" (p. 7). Which of these tendencies is you usual default? Why would merely administering consequences be ineffective in the long run?

Ginger says on page 9 that "all children are sinners, all parents are sinners, and because we are sinners we will all make mistakes, no matter how well studied and well prepared we think we are."

I CAN'T BELIEVE YOU JUST SAID THAT \nearrow DISCUSSION GUIDE

"No matter what stage of life our children are in, the most important thing we can do for them is pray To pray for our children from God's Word is to pray in harmony with God's perfect will for their lives" (pp. 13-14), Ginger says. What grade would you give your prayer life? How faithful are you to pray for your children? Are you praying Scripture for them? Start by praying through passages like Ephesians 1:17-19, Philippians 1:9-11, and Colossians 1:9-14 to use Paul's prayers as a model	important thing we can do for them is pray To pray for our children from God's Word is to pray in harmony with God's perfect will for their lives" (pp. 13-14), Ginger says. What grade would you give your prayer life? How faithful are you to pray for your children? Are you praying Scripture for them? Start b praying through passages like Ephesians 1:17-19, Philippians important thing we can do for them is pray To pray for our children from God's Word is to pray in harmony with God's perfect will for their lives" (pp. 13-14), Ginger says. What grade would you give your prayer life? How faithful are you to pray for your children? Are you praying Scripture for them? Start b praying through passages like Ephesians 1:17-19, Philippians 1:9-11, and Colossians 1:9-14 to use Paul's prayers as a model	important thing we can do for them is pray To pray for our children from God's Word is to pray in harmony with God's perfect will for their lives" (pp. 13-14), Ginger says. What grade would you give your prayer life? How faithful are you to pray for your children? Are you praying Scripture for them? Start b praying through passages like Ephesians 1:17-19, Philippians 1:9-11, and Colossians 1:9-14 to use Paul's prayers as a model for your own.	important thing we can do for them is pray To pray for our children from God's Word is to pray in harmony with God's perfect will for their lives" (pp. 13-14), Ginger says. What grade would you give your prayer life? How faithful are you to pray for your children? Are you praying Scripture for them? Start b praying through passages like Ephesians 1:17-19, Philippians 1:9-11, and Colossians 1:9-14 to use Paul's prayers as a model

	What is your child's biggest problem with his or her speech?
	ook through the chapter titles in the table of contents if one oes not immediately come to mind. Have you had a strategy so ar for addressing it? Would you say that this discipline has bee ffective or ineffective? Do you have a deliberate strategy for n	naking changes?
_
_
-
-
-
"	It is not enough," Ginger says, "to tell kids what not to do; we nust teach them what to do" (p. 20). How do you replace wrong
	- , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,
b	ehavior with right behavior and attitudes?
_
-
-
_

CHAPTER TWO WHINING

	are two reasons that Ginger says children whine (p. 26)?
What a	are the results? What is at the root of this behavior (p. 27
Can a c	child understand the concept of self-control? Why does
Ginger	believe that it is important to use the Bible's own termi
_	to help a child recognize his or her sinful speech?
1101069	TO DELO A CHING PECOUNIZE HIS OF HELSINIH SDEECH?
	to help a child recognize his or her simul speech:
	to help a clinic recognize his of her simul speech:
	to help a child recognize his of her shirti speech?
	to help a child recognize his of her shirti speech:
	to help a child recognize his of her shirti speech?
	to help a child recognize his of her shirti speech:
	to help a clinu recognize his of her shiful speech:
	to help a child recognize his of her shirti speech:
	to help a clinic recognize his of her shirtin speech:

	s always true? How old was your child when he/she first eliberately disobedient?
on pag trying	ou ever guilty of reprimanding in anger, as Ginger descrige 29? Why is it so vital that parents practice self-controg to teach self-control? Do you think that the three-minuquence (p. 30-31) would be effective in overcoming whini
a con	is the connection between whining and idolatry? Is this cept that young children can understand? Do children row" whining?

CHAPTER THREE LYING

What is the reason children (and their parents) lie? Do we treat exaggeration, half-truths, and white lies differently from outright deception? Should we?
Who is the "father of lies" (John 8:44b)? Why do lies tear down foundational family trust (p. 39)?

1 3/}	nat are some of the dangers Ginger notes about punishing a ng child and how can you respond to them?
,	8
	s week, plan to be very intentional in correcting your child in t
	a. Take time to write down the opportunities you find for corre _	him or her. What did you do well? What can you improve? In if Ginger's strategies seem awkward as you begin to pract em, can you see how this might be helpful in your family?
tiic	in, can you see now this inight be neithful in your failing.
_

CHAPTER FOUR TATTLING

1. How do you usually handle the issue of one child tattling on other at your house? Do you identify with the parents who _	ore the tattler because they don't know how to deal with the ue or rationalize their lack of action?

ISS	ue of rationalize their lack of actions
_
Wh	nat are the wrong motives for tattling that Ginger lists on page 4
Wł	nat are the right motives (p. 48-49)? How can you help your chi
rec	ognize the difference between tattling and genuine concern
_

	_	g impro	ove the r	elations	hip bet	weeı
	_	g impro	ove the r	elations	hip bet	weeı
	_	g impro	ove the r	elations	hip bet	weeı
	_	g impro	ove the r	elations	hip bet	weeı
	_	g impro	ove the r	elations	hip bet	weei
How can a	_	g impro	ove the r	elations	hip bet	weei

4. Be on the lookout for tattling in your home this week. Arm yourself with a notecard where you have copied the Scripture verses Ginger mentions in this chapter. Or better yet, be proactive, providing some role play incidents where you give you children a chance to do the right thing!

CHAPTER FIVE DEFYING

1.	Ginger says on page 52 that "children disobey not because they are busy, tired, hungry, or having a bad hair day. They disobey because they are sinners who are selfish by nature." Do you have a tendency to make excuses for your child's bad behavior? What does this teach them?
2.	"All the way, right away, and with a joyful heart" (p. 54). That is Ginger's standard for biblical obedience. Can we expect this of our children? Does it change with age? Post a sign with these words, especially if your child is old enough to read them, and proactively practice them. Watch for opportunities to praise your children when they are successful!

Do some strong-willed children seem willing to go on a hunger strike rather than obey? How can you act more wisely than the do and require obedience without a major battle? 4. What do you think about the "five-minute warning" that Ginge mentions on page 55? How does this both show respect for our mentions on page 55? How does this both show respect for our	3.	Do some strong-willed children seem willing to go on a hunger strike rather than obey? How can you act more wisely than the mentions on page 55? How does this both show respect for our
	4.	What do you think about the "five-minute warning" that Ginge mentions on page 55? How does this both show respect for our children and keep them (and ourselves) from exasperation?

CHAPTER SIX MANIPULATING

L.	younger children and older children differ in the way they practice it? Do we ever unintentionally reward the child's negative behavior? Part of changing this behavior is making ourselves aware of it!
2.	Why does Ginger recommend that we train our children privately, rather than in front of others (p. 62)? How can you avoid humiliation for your child?

and the "why" of manipulation? Which do you (or did you) face most often?
Are you tempted to use manipulation against your children? Or your spouse? What are the warning signs? Do you see this as more acceptable than your child's attempt to manipulate you Why or why not?

CHAPTER SEVEN INTERRUPTING

L.	What sin is at the root of interrupting? Ginger reminds parents of the importance of setting a good example, avoiding monopolizing the conversation or jumping in when others are talking.
	Do you think that families are prone to generational sin in this area? Are you tempted to interrupt (or even ignore) some of your child's long-winded stories? How can you show consideration to them instead?
2.	How does the telephone affect your conversation with your children? Do you have techniques to share about preventing interruptions during important phone calls?

3.	"Your children need time with you," Ginger says (p. 72). How can you deliberately validate their desire for connection and communication?
4.	Ginger suggests spending some time talking with your children individually at bedtime. Why did she avoid this opportunity correcting them? What can a few minutes at bedtime do for relationship with your children? What is your current bedtim routine? What one thing can you do—starting this week!—to improve it?

CHAPTER EIGHT COMPLAINING

1. How is complaining a violation of God's command in 1 Thessasu	ggestions and try one today!

Wl	hich of the biblical examples of thanksgiving do you most nnect with: Joseph, Jesus, or Paul? Do you think your childre ll connect more with these scriptural examples or with you ow	n testimony of overcoming complaining? Take time to thin
of	at least one victory over complaining you have had and refl
on	the way it changed your perspective in a difficult situation

Focu	s on the positive! If your child learns to avoid complaini instead finds ways to be thankful and content, she will b er friend, a better team member, a better students, and v
	the family to be happier! Many families have tried a gra
-	journal (you can find dozens of examples and suggestion hem online) with great success. Try one for 30 days (it is to use a spiral notebook!) by asking each family member ontribute one thanksgiving at supper each night. Try not at what anyone else has said. This will help your childre
-	ntionally positive and grateful, both on a daily basis and look back at their entries!
Ве р:	repared! If you are going to reprimand your children abo
_	plaining, you are going to have many opportunities to le esson yourself. Go ahead and make the review cards for own	memory verses and exercise the discipline of gratitude!

CHAPTER NINE BLAME-SHIFTING

1.	Blame-shifting, or trying to dismiss our personal guilt, is a form of pride. Accepting personal accountability is not easy, though, for our children or for us. Are all mistakes sin? Is all blameshifting sin? Why or why not?
,	In the Bible's assessment of Adams and Two blames shifting is suite
2.	In the Bible's account of Adam and Eve, blame-shifting is quite obvious. Adam blamed Eve; Eve blamed the serpent. In life in your house, there may be some typical patterns of blame-shifting as well: Brother blames Sister; Sister blames the cat. Or Dad blames Mom; Mom blames the alarm clock—or the bank, or the check-out clerk, or the traffic. How can you stop the cycle? What can you do to change your family's pass-the-buck pattern?

I C	AN'T BELIEVE YOU JUST SAID THAT * DISCUSSION GUIDE
3.	When Ginger moved her family to accepting more responsibility for their actions, what did they learn? What were some of the components she put in place for helping them to be accountable?
	What will the rewards of personal responsibility be for your children?

CHAPTER TEN TEASING

1.	Can you give an example of a time when someone used teasing to send a "hidden" message? Though the comment may have been masked as something to receive attention or be entertaining, the barb was still painful and harmful. What would your children say if you asked them what percentage of the teasing they hear from their family is meant to tear them down instead of building them up?

2. What is the difference in edification and in flattery? How well do you model edification to your children? Compliments that merely address appearances ("you have such beautiful hair!" "I love your blue eyes.") are "cheap." Compliments that address

abilitie	s ("You are so smart!" "You played better than anyone else on	your team.") are only slightly better. Work to complime your ch	nild's character ("I really liked the way you were kind to your fr	iend when she fell down." "I am so glad that you told
-	th today." "You waited so patiently in the doctor's office ternoon."). These count for much more. These are earned
	,
	ments! Reinforcing good behaviors and modeling sincer
еатпсат	tion means much to your children.
Ic tasci	ng ever appropriate? What parameters would you tically set up as tests for "good" teasing? You may want t make a	list of do's and don'ts, for yourself and for your child.

4.	Some children are targets of teasing that becomes bullying.
	Children who are small for their ages, who have disabilities, who are not well-coordinated, or who are not wealthy, are much more likely to be the targets of teasing. How do you teach your children to respond if they see teasing happening? What if your child is the one being teased?

CHAPTER ELEVEN AGGRAVATING

1. Do "only children" struggle with this sin in the same way that siblings do? Why does Ginger suggest taking both children "back to the scene of the crime" (p. 111) to replay their actions and reactions? Why would Amy benefit by this role play as much as Gunnar would?

likely, you	r sibling) to a	iggravate you	?
-		lisciplining yo easy for you to		aggravating?
Why or w	hy not? Is it e		o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour
Why or w	hy not? Is it e	easy for you to	o get discour

CHAPTER TWELVE BRAGGING

1.	Bragging stems from pride, and pride, in essence, puts us in opposition to God. How many of these "sins of the tongue" reveal a heart of pride? If we conquer pride, we may have a better chance to conquer our tongues. What can you do to combat pride without killing appropriate self-esteem and confidence in your child?
2.	Ginger says that "we can humbly accept the praise of others as long as we keep a right perspective on it" (p. 118). How can you help your child to keep a right perspective? How do you teach your child to handle compliments appropriately?

Do parents (or grandparents) contribute to a child's conceit? How can you reframe your encouragement to help a child acknowledge God as the giver of good gifts? How can you help your children recognize Jesus' example in humility and find the validation in the Lord?

4. Use the words of others to teach your children to recognize bragging and humility. Many celebrity interviews (athletes, musicians, actors) are teaching opportunities. Help your children recognize the quarterback who thanks his offensive line or his coach instead of taking all the credit; help them also see the actress whose comments center only on herself. Help your child think of appropriate responses if he or she is often in a position to receive the praise of others.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN ARGUING

1. What is at the root of arguing, according to Ginger (p. 124)?

Think of a recent example when your child argued with you.
What steps did you take? Were they successful?

2. Arguing is foolish behavior according to God's Word, and parents must be diligent to address it with discipline. How can parents teach children the "consequences of disobedience and the blessings of obedience" (p. 128)? Make a list of key concepts in

_	says, "Wise par t their children			_
instruc discipli What c even if	-	" (p. 128)." u do with need to m e—that yo	Why is tim managing nake? Writ ou can inte	e a requirent your time a e down one entionally m	nent for as a pare change-
instruc discipli What c even if	t their childrenne? How do yo hanges do you it is a small on	" (p. 128)." u do with need to m e—that yo	Why is tim managing nake? Writ ou can inte	e a requirent your time a e down one entionally m	nent for as a pare change-
instruc discipli What c even if	t their childrenne? How do yo hanges do you it is a small on	" (p. 128)." u do with need to m e—that yo	Why is tim managing nake? Writ ou can inte	e a requirent your time a e down one entionally m	nent for as a pare change-
instruc discipli What c even if	t their childrenne? How do yo hanges do you it is a small on	" (p. 128)." u do with need to m e—that yo	Why is tim managing nake? Writ ou can inte	e a requirent your time a e down one entionally m	nent for as a pare change-
instruc discipli What c even if	t their childrenne? How do yo hanges do you it is a small on	" (p. 128)." u do with need to m e—that yo	Why is tim managing nake? Writ ou can inte	e a requirent your time a e down one entionally m	nent for as a pare change-

CHAPTER FOURTEEN YELLING

L.	that yelling is a sinful expression of anger (p. 130). What are the signals that anger has become sinful (page 135)?

2. If "anger can be likened to a blinking light on the dashboard of a car, which alerts you that something is wrong under the hood" (p. 130), how can you help your child work to identify and correct anger problems? Help your child identify a "means of escape," a strategy for appropriately working through anger.

their be emotion Why is	unication with angry child is important in managing chavior and helping a child learn not to be enslaved by us. What can a parent do to improve communication? a cool-down period effective? How can active listening to wimportant is helping a child to name his/her emotion
help? F

GOSSIPING

L.	Ginger connects being judgmental (or judging) and gossiping. Do the two always go together? What sin is at the root of both judging and gossiping, according to page 140? Is there a connection with hypocrisy? (It just gets worse and worse!)
2.	Sometimes parents seem to be focusing only on outward behavior (p. 140) for our children. What happens when this is the case? Do parents really lead their children to legalism and manipulation?
	How can we make sure that we address heart issues?

How serious is gossip? Have you ever been hurt by gossip? I you ever hurt someone else by gossip? Can we teach our chand model for them, the choices necessary to avoid gossiping and model for them, the choices necessary to avoid gossiping. Social media has provided a new landscape for gossip. What guidelines have you set up for your children (especially you older children) to control their exposure to and participation in gossip? How can gossip become a form of bullying?
guidelines have you set up for your children (especially you older children) to control their exposure to and participation	you ever hurt so	meone else by gossip?	Can we teach our chi
guidelines have you set up for your children (especially you older children) to control their exposure to and participation
guidelines have you set up for your children (especially you older children) to control their exposure to and participation
guidelines have you set up for your children (especially you older children) to control their exposure to and participation older children) to control their exposure to and participation		- older children) to	o control their exposu	re to and participatio

CHAPTER SIXTEEN BICKERING

Is it normal for siblings to not get along with each other? What kind of relationship did you have with your brothers and sisters? Is the relationship between your children similar?
If your siblings argued, what could your parents have done to correct or improve it?
How can you teach an immature child to determine whether an argument is worthwhile? How can the child recognize a foolish argument? Brainstorm some suggestions for quick questions the child can learn to ask before responding to conflict.
What strategies can you give your child for choosing to walk away from the quarrel?

thinki the sa	is involved in resolving conflict biblically? Though young about these things as a parent instructing your children strategies will work in your own relationships! No practical things that you (and your children) can do t ogether in unity."

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

WHAT'S A GOOD PARENT TO DO?

1.	"We should never issue a warning or a command without following it through," Ginger says on page 158. Ouch! Here it is, in the parents' court. Empty threats do not teach our children what we want them to do! On a scale of one ("They never listen!") to ten ("I always follow through!"), where are you in the matter of letting your yes be yes and your no be no?

	bedience? How can you avoid exasperating your childrensequences that are too burdensome?
childrer future. 1	encourages parents to fight battles with training when are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these childrer future. I difficult	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"?
childrer future. I difficult (p. 161).	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these
childrer future. I difficult (p. 161). in the w	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"? But, "it is never too late to begin training your children
childrer future. I difficult (p. 161). in the w	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"? But, "it is never too late to begin training your children rays of the Lord," Ginger says on page 164. Does this
childrer future. I difficult (p. 161). in the w	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"? But, "it is never too late to begin training your children rays of the Lord," Ginger says on page 164. Does this
childrer future. I difficult (p. 161). in the w	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"? But, "it is never too late to begin training your children rays of the Lord," Ginger says on page 164. Does this childrer future. I difficult (p. 161). in the w	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"? But, "it is never too late to begin training your children rays of the Lord," Ginger says on page 164. Does this
childrer future. I difficult (p. 161). in the w	a are younger to prevent more difficult battles in the Do you agree with her? Can a young child learn these issues? Why is it "better to train than to retrain"? But, "it is never too late to begin training your children rays of the Lord," Ginger says on page 164. Does this

I CAN'T BELIEVE YOU JUST SAID THAT 🔭 DISCUSSION GUIDE

	en you feel angry at your child, how do you make wise enting choices in spite of your emotions? Do you have _	tegies to add to those that Ginger mentions on page 163?
	lay-to-day parenting or day-to-day life in general has us bog vn, stressed out, and uptight, it can be a sign that priorities
you	d adjusting," Ginger says (p. 167). When you honestly exam r priorities, are they reflected in the things you spend your t energy on? Are your daily habits in line with your prioritie

